Rubrica

Though my lady makes me suffer, of her I'll never speak a bitter word – it's not right: I've chosen this pain. But I will curse Love, for building up a passion that she treats with scorn .

And I'll never cast my lady in harsh terms, despite the hurt she causes, and the sleep I lose, but I reserve scorn for Love,
that she treats with scorn.

No matter how I suffer, I have no reason to complain about my lady – but in my heart, I say: I loathe Love,
for building up a passion
that she treats with scorn.
